PREFACE

The annual publication of the Naval War College on international law for 1942 has been prepared, as formerly, since 1938, in collaboration with Payson Sibley Wild, Jr., Ph. D., professor of international law, Harvard University, and associate for international law, Naval War College.

Discussions by the Naval War College classes have given special attention to international law in its relation to the conduct of the war now in progress. Important and relevant documents concerning belligerents and neutrals also have been under consideration. Documents cited in this volume are among those discussed.

While certain of these documents are easily accessible, others have not yet appeared in any collection and are not readily available to naval officers.

W. S. PYE,
Rear Admiral, United States Navy,
President, Naval War College.
